

Circuit Court Gives Colwell, Kilburn Life Sentence

Perry County Circuit Court yesterday found Curt Colwell and Elmer Kilburn guilty of wilfully murdering Lillie Valentine with a shotgun last December, and recommended life imprisonment for the two.

Circuit Judge Courtney Wells said he will probably pass sentence of Colwell and Kilburn some time Saturday morning. If given life imprisonment, they will be eligible for parole in eight years.

The 11-man, one woman jury returned the verdict at 10:15 a.m., Tuesday after deliberating almost five hours.

Carl Eversole, attorney for the defense of Colwell, 19, and Kilburn, 21, said he plans to file a motion and grounds for a new trial before the Circuit Court term expires Saturday.

The verdict climaxed two exhausting days of testimony in which more than 23 witnesses were called to the stand. The trial wore on until 10 p.m., Monday and Tuesday nights.

The commonwealth attorneys, Tolbert Combs, Bill Melton and Gus Cornett, based their case around the testimonies of Paul Napier, who was seriously injured at the time Mrs. Valentine was murdered, and Frankie Valentine, daughter of Mrs. Valentine, who said she saw Curt Colwell fire the shotgun that claimed her mother's life.

Identifies Colwell

Napier positively identified Colwell as the killer. "Right there he sits," Napier said, looking at Colwell seated at the defendants table. "I'm looking him right in the damn eye."

Frankie Valentine, Napier's sister-in-law, said: "I seen Curt standing at the window and he had the gun and shot Mommy."

In defending Colwell and Kilburn, Eversole raised the question of why Napier and Frankie waited so long before naming the persons they saw shoot Mrs. Valentine. He pointed out that state and county officers were attempting to discover the murderers, and that if they knew Colwell was guilty, they should have spoken up.

Napier and Miss Valentine first accused Colwell and Kilburn, Mar. 11, almost three months after the slaying.

Commonwealth Attorney Combs indicated in testimony that Napier waited before naming the murderers only because he was not physically able to talk or remember what had happened for some time. Napier was struck in the head by buckshot from the murder weapon.

"Thought A Lot of Her"

In determining a motive for the killing, the prosecution questioned Colwell and Kilburn about a fight they reportedly had in Valentine's restaurant on the Friday night before the Sunday killing. It was revealed that Colwell, had in his possession a .45-calibre pistol that night. Kilburn went outside to fight another boy, he said.

The next day, Mrs. Valentine secured a warrant for the arrest of Kilburn and Colwell. They later paid a fine. When asked if this was not why he killed Mrs. Valentine, Colwell replied:

"No sir. I thought a lot of Mrs. Valentine."

Another witness whose testimony hurt Colwell and Kilburn's chances of acquittal was Susie Lewis. Miss Lewis said she was sitting in a car with Sam Cornett at Smyly's Drive-In near Wal-kertown not long after 5 p.m. the evening of the shooting.

She said Colwell and Kilburn and Kilburn's wife, Leona, drove up to Smyly's and that the two boys came over to the car she was in and asked her and Cornett if they had heard about the shooting at Combs.

Both Colwell and Kilburn denied making the statement, and said that it was shortly after 4 p.m. that they saw Miss Lewis.

Sam Cornett, now an inmate at the Kentucky State Reformatory, was brought to Hazard as a witness by the Commonwealth but he did not appear in court.

The degree of visibility of Napier and Frankie Valentine in looking through the window through which Mrs. Valentine was shot figured prominently in Eversole's defense argument.

He said that December 22 is the shortest day of the year, and darkness comes before 5 p.m. Eversole claimed it is difficult to be in a lighted room and see images outside a window when it is dark. Mrs. Valentine was shot after 5 p.m.

28 Feet Away

Eversole used the testimony of State Detective Edward Cornett and photographs Cornett took the morning after the shooting to establish the position of the gun-wielder at about 28 feet from the window.

The pictures, entered in the trial as evidence, showed the scatter of nine shotgun pellets in a plastic curtain at the resaurant window to be about 10 to 15 inches in diameter. The gun had to be about 28 feet away to permit such a scatter, according to Cornett's estimate. This distance would have made it further difficult to identify someone at that stage of darkness, Eversole maintained.

When called to testify, Colwell and Kilburn gave almost identical stories.

They said they spent most of Dec. 22, the day of the slaying at the restaurant owned by Kilburn's father, Bud Kilburn. Elmer and his wife live there. It is located next to where the Valentine restaurant stood.

About 4 p.m., they decided to go to the show in Hazard, they said. The rest of their testimony was as follows:

The two boys and Mrs. Kilburn started to town, and on the way, picked up two hitch-hikers, John Deaton and Tommy Rader. They stopped at Smyly's Drive-In about 4:15 and stayed "long enough to get a Coke." Here, they saw and talked to Sam Cornett and Susie Lewis.

Kilburn said he got in the car with Cornett and Miss Lewis for a few minutes. Colwell said he stood outside.

Coming on to town, they parked their car in the taxi alley and went into the Family Theater, taking seats in the balcony. Colwell said Deaton and Rader sat behind them.

Hears of Slaying

About 7 p.m., Mrs. Kilburn went down to the lobby to get some popcorn. Here, she heard about a shooting at Combs from

The appointment was made at the State Convention held last week in Ashland, Lion Eldon Davidson of Berea was elected District Governor of District 43-Y, and it was through him that Lion Lutes received his appointment.

The seven clubs in Region 4 are Whitesburg, Neon, Hazard, Blue Diamond, Hindman, Wayland, and Pikeville.

Aside from a growing membership, the Club has contributed much to this community such as furnishing glasses and eye examination for needy children, flood relief, Boy Scouts, City Recreation Program, and many other worthwhile projects. The year 1957-58 under Lion Lutes' direction may well be considered one of the finest years of the Club history.

Mr. Lutes' successor to the presidency of the Hazard Club is Mr. J. W. Scholtens, Assistant District Manager of Kentucky Power Company.

"Son Threatened," Thomas Testifies

Aaron Thomas, who last month confessed killing Mrs. Lillie Valentine, testified Tuesday that he confessed because someone had threatened to blow up his ex-wife and son.

He said he received the threat through a fellow inmate at the Kentucky State Reformatory at LaGrange where he is now an inmate on another charge. Thomas, 24, said he was told: "If you don't take the rap, you're going to lose a kid."

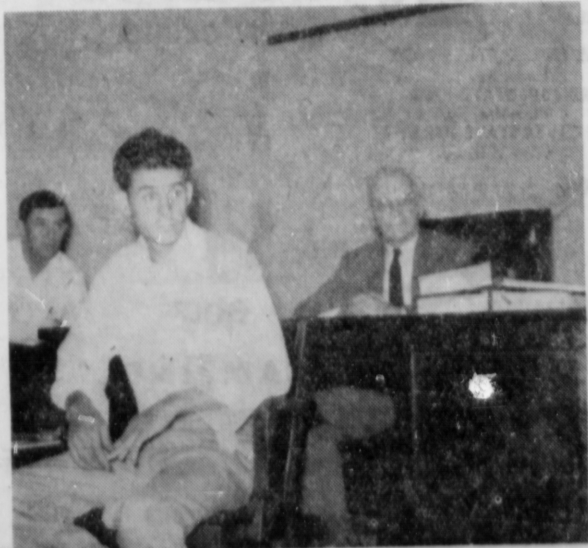

Thomas signed a full confession to the Valentine murder on May 24th before Warden Dan Gray at LaGrange. Thomas did not complain of being threatened.

Thomas said he was given three days to return the confession to Hazard, or his son would be harmed.

"I got a kid I want to see live," he said.

Thomas' mother could be heard sobbing in a room behind the court room when Thomas left the witness stand.

The forming of the jury occupied most of the first day of the trial, as almost 100 persons were summoned before the Commonwealth attorneys Tolbert Combs, Bill Melton and Gus Cornett and defense counselor Carl Eversole could agree on 12 of them. The final jury was: Pearl Baker, B. D. Felner, W. A. Wheeler, Fred Moore, Lige Noble, Mrs. Charley Shepherd, Lee Lewallen, Frank Salyers, Wheeler Goins, Charles Lee, Robert Oaks and Arthur Eversole.

Son's Life Threatened

Aaron Thomas, on the witness stand in front of Circuit Judge Courtney Wells, said he was scared into confessing killing Lillie Valentine last month when his son's life was threatened.

LETTER FROM MRS. JOHN SHERMAN COOPER

Official Guests Include Ambassador

The town has been filled with official guests these last few weeks, and among them was President Heuss of Germany. The German Ambassador gave a large reception for him at the Mayflower Hotel and as everyone's husband was working at that hour of the afternoon, I went to pay my respect to him with Mrs. Christian Herter, wife of the Under Secretary of State and Mrs. Douglas Dillon, wife of the Deputy Under Secretary of State. The three of us have taken to going to official receptions together as it is so lonely going to a big reception without one's husband and none of our husbands can get away from their offices for these 5 to 7 affairs.

President Is Attractive

The President of Germany is a tall and attractive looking man with surprisingly pink cheeks and blue eyes and looks younger than his 74 years. There was a battle of the flashbulbs when America's German-born citizen, the rocket expert, handsome Dr. Vernher von Braun, and his wife came through the line to be greeted by his equally handsome brother, Baron Sigismund von Braun, Germany's Chief of Protocol, who came to America with the President's official party. The two brothers had met earlier yesterday for the first time in 11 years and today they will be joined by their third brother, Magnus von Braun, a director of the Chrysler Corporation, who is flying from Detroit for the first meeting of all three in 17 years. It is interesting how three brothers each have taken up such different occupations in life in which they are so successful. This unexpected encounter in Washington after so many years of separation showed in what unforeseen paths our destiny can lead us.

Dance Company Performs

Last night we went to the opening of the famous Moiseyev dance company from Moscow, which is touring the United States with such tremendous success. The demand for tickets was so great in New York that they are giving a return engagement at Madison Square Garden. I can well understand it because to see last night's performance was a unique experience. The troupe of about 100 young people are artists in Russian folk dancing. Their program began with a suite of White Russian and Kazan dances and continued with the native dances of all parts of Russia. Most of the acts were done by large groups, usually 40 people on the stage, 20 girls and 20 boys, dancing with a precision equal to our Rockettes at the Radio City Music Hall in New York.

The thing that impressed everyone was the extraordinary discipline and technique, accompanied with such light-hearted gaiety. It was like looking in a book of fairy stories. All of the dances were beautiful but the last one, a Ukrainian suite with the music of Springtime Ritual songs, brought down the house. It begins with the sorrowful entrance of the girls dressed in the Ukrainian national costume, with garlands of flowers on their heads, striped aprons and short skirts in bright colors, and soft red boots.

Story of Sadness

Their friend, Galina, must part with her lover, Gritka, and the girls share her sadness. With dances and games they try to dispel Galina's melancholy mood. Then, to their joy, Gritka and his friends return to the village. The happy reunion of the lovers ends in a gay celebration by their friends as they dance the Hopak, the famous Ukrainian dance where the men spin, leap and twirl. The audience cheered and cheered, which unusual in Washington as theatre people always say it's the coldest audience in the country. When the curfewing rose again, all of the dancers were lined up for our own Virginia Reel which they performed with great enthusiasm, accompanied by the audience clapping in rhythm. It ended with the curtain falling on the strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

I imagine the people in Moscow responded to the art of our own young pianist, Van Cliburn of Texas, the way the Washington audience did to these dancers. For a true artistic performance is universal and touches a common chord in everyone's heart. That's the reason that the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to exchange visits of our great artists.

Coal Industry Appeals To House For Repeal of Transportation Tax

The bituminous coal industry said today, "there is no quicker way for the House to make the recession recede" than to follow the Senate's action repealing federal taxes on transportation of coal and other freight.

Tom Pickett, executive vice president of the National Coal Association, said in a statement, "I sincerely hope the House conferees will bear in mind that removal of this inequitable tax will benefit every consumer in the nation."

The Senate voted yesterday to repeal the four cents a ton tax on transportation of coal and the three per cent levy on transportation of other property. The action was an amendment to a bill extending corporation and excise taxes. Approval by the House, which first voted to continue transportation taxes, is necessary before the measure goes to the President for signature.

The coal industry, which is the railroads' No. 1 customer and contributes more than $1 billion a year in freight revenue, has long advocated repeal of the transportation tax. Coal's principal competitors, natural gas and residual oil at dockside, pay no such tax.

Text of Mr. Pickett's statement follows: "The bituminous coal industry, a keystone of the national economy, urges the House of Representatives to accept the Senate amendment repealing the unjust and onerous four cents a ton tax on transportation of coal and the three per cent tax on transportation of other freight.

"I sincerely hope the House conferees will bear in mind that removal of this inequitable tax will benefit every consumer in the nation. Lifting the burden of this pyramiding levy, which adds to the cost of everything moved by common carrier, will increase purchasing power, tend to reduce unemployment and act as a tonic to our lethargic economy."

"The coal industry, like the rest of the economy, has been hurt by the recession. This is the most immediate help it could receive. Congress has been debating ways to rejuvenate the ailing railroads. Here is a remedy, right at hand, far more potent than many of the panaceas proposed."

"The producers of bituminous coal salute the Senate for voting to remove at last this outmoded World War II tax. It is now up to the House to carry through. The loss in revenue will be far outweighed by the benefits to the whole nation if this unfair burden is finally removed. There is no quicker way for the House to make the recession recede."

In choosing material for chair covers or any other slipcovers or drapes there are two things one should look for. Check the labels to make sure the material is sanforized and colorfast. Also a medium weight fabric will give more service and protection than a lighter weight fabric.

The wider width (48 and 54) is more suitable than the 36 inch, although the narrow may be used satisfactorily if you purchase enough of it.

TRUTH-AD FOR THE UNCHURCHED

BY WINN T. BARR

The good NEWS belongs in the NEWSpaper, but LOOK in the BOOK it comes from, and SEARCH for the CHURCH that obeys that book most fully.

What is Christianity? Is it just the belief that there is a God who is good and that we should be good, that God loves everybody and we should love Him and everybody else?

Of course, Christianity includes all this, but this is by no means distinctly Christian. The Jews and Moslems believe in God. You don't need Jesus or the New Testament to have that much religion.

Christianity is the belief that God came here, that Jesus was God incarnate, that Jesus fulfilled some obligations for us that we couldn't fulfill, that He arose from the dead, that for Jesus sake God forgives men who repent and trust Him. This and this alone is Christianity. There is no Christianity without Christ. Why try to get along on Old Testament candlelight when you can have New Testament electric light?

Look for a TRUTH-AD every Thursday.

Ellison Wootton Returns To Indiana

Ivory S. Wootton

I missed another week and everybody wants to know what happened to the Viper news! Well, sometimes there just doesn't seem to be any, but today I have an item I'm proud to report. The road, Kentucky 7, has been repaired down to Viper. Even though it is just patched it surely seems good to drive without fear you may leave an oil pan in the bottom of one of those pits.

There has been quite a bit of hammering and banging over Carson Cornetts way. Seems that he is remodeling his house. Also he is driving a new Buick car.

Cornetts Remodeling

Take a look at S. J. Cornetts house, too. They have remodelled their house.

We are glad to hear Carl Cooley and Ova Watts are home from the hospital. Hope they both have a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Sally York hasn't been feeling well lately. I'm sure she would like to see any of you who could drop in for a visit. After twelve years in a wheel chair. Who wouldn't enjoy visitors.

Visit In Ohio

Miss Anna Lee Wootton and I spent last week in Middletown, Ohio. We visited my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Shepherd and I guess we came in quite handy as their two acres of strawberries were at a peak, Charles and Tommy spent three weeks up there and they were anxious to get back home even though they did have a wonderful time.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Gabbard are proud to announce the arrival of a new baby girl born, June 13. They have chosen the name Vickie Susan. Mrs. Gabbard is the former Miss Mercedes Brashear.

Ellison Wootton has returned to Muncy, Ind. where he is employed by a packing company.

Planning a vacation trip? Having company or going fishing? Let me know as I need your news if you want to see our column each week.

He, Wilson, explained that his reasons for re-registration was that he lived in that section of Knott County and wished very much to remain on the reservation.

Colwell, Kilburn Get Life

James Delph, a young theater janitor. Kilburn and Colwell said their party left, accompanied with one of their friends, and drove to Combs, where they found a crowd standing outside Mrs. Valentine's restaurant.

Colwell testified he had never shot a shotgun and that he doubted if he could even shoot one. His right hand has been deformed since birth. After Colwell stepped down, the defense called on a witness whose testimony inadvertently injured the defendants position still further, a testimony which the prosecution capitalized on to the full. The witness was Mrs. Elmer Kilburn.

Contradicts Husband

During her testimony, Mrs. Kilburn contradicted what her husband and Colwell had said on four points: she said that they did not pick up any hitch-hikers on the way to town, that Deaton and Rader got in the car as they did. She said that at Smyly's Drive-In Colwell also got in a car with Sam Cornett and Susie Lewis. And she testified that at the Family Theater, Deaton and Rader sat in front of her and her party, not behind, and that the three left alone. She said Deaton and Rader "wanted to stay and see the picture."

Mrs. Kilburn is several months pregnant. The defense then called on several witnesses who had arrived at the Valentine restaurant shortly before the shooting. The main question Eversole put to them was: What did Frankie Valentine say about who killed her mother after she ran screaming from the restaurant where her mother lay dead?

The witnesses all agreed that she did not mention anyone who might have fired the shots. Eversole used these testimonies in his summation to the jury, attempting to show that Frankie did not know at that time who killed her mother.

Eversole said of Paul Napier in his summation: "We find in his testimony a thing that is not supposed to be harbored in the human heart. Hatred is that thing." Eversole said that Napier "did not know then and he does not know" who killed Mrs. Valentine. He also stressed to the jury the importance of requiring the Commonwealth to prove by evidence beyond a reasonable doubt the guilt of the defendants.

Pleads For Conviction

Tolbert Combs pled for conviction in his summation, and charged the jury "to do their duty." He mentioned the reliance upon an alibi and the attempt by the defense to implicate someone else in the shooting as fallacies in the defense's argument. Eversole indicated that the slaying of Mrs. Valentine grew from a disagreement between Cash Johnson, a bartender at the Valentine restaurant, and his sons.

The case rested in the jury's hands at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday. When 30 minutes deliberation then, and three hours more later that night failed to bring a verdict, Circuit Judge Courtney Wells sent the jurors away under guard for the night. They came back at about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday and announced their decision about two hours later.

No Emotion

When the defendants heard the jury foreman read the verdict, their faces registered no apparent emotion. The two sat quietly throughout the trial. They always answered their questioners with "sir."

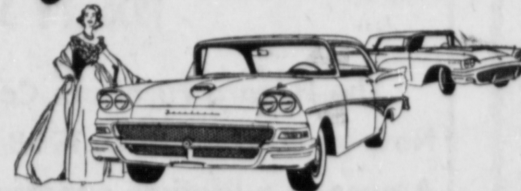

As the long list of witnesses gradually thinned, there was noticeable tension among the several hundred persons that crowded the court room. The balcony was full most of the time, and dozens of people were standing. Judge Wells had to call spectators down several times.

Immediately after the jury was dismissed, Kilburn and Colwell were taken into custody.
